The Venue: NATIONAL ACOUSTICS LABORATORIES

The Time: 6.30 pm to 7.30 pm

The Speaker: Chris Schulten

The Department of Environment and Conservation (DEC) recently released a new vibration guideline to replace the no-longer current information in the now defunct Environmental Noise Control Manual.

The British Standard BS6472-1992 has guided DEC's vibration guideline, and as this Standard is due to be revised, the DEC guideline can be considered interim until the revised Standard is published.

Chris Schulten works in the Noise Policy section of the DEC and his talk will summarise the DEC's new vibration guidelines and will include a practical demonstration of vibration measurements.
